We're here to support you

Helping you get back to work safely and keeping your business running is our priority, and we have all the products and expert advice to make that happen. Whoever you are it's vital you keep yourself, your employees and your service users safe, so we've brought together this guide to help you do that. You'll find all the things you need to help make the working environment safe in a handy 'at a glance' product guide, as well as safety related products that can be used in different sectors or environments.

Quality products you can trust

At Rexel, all of our suppliers and products are subject to rigorous due diligence to ensure we offer only quality products that confirm to current safety standards. The huge demand for some PPE products has been matched by the number of new suppliers offering product that are not always supported with genuine, valid CE certification and declarations (offered by Rexel where applicable.) As a key supplier to the health and government sectors, and the contractors that support them, we have aligned our stringent requirements with those of the British Safety Industry Federation (BSIF) (for products where applicable) so you have total peace of mind when you choose a product from Rexel.

Guidance on working safely

Helping you and your service users keep safe during the course of your work

Before

- Before visiting a service user, confirm that you and your colleagues have no symptoms of the virus and if in doubt, do not attend the service user's premises.
- If you or your colleagues have any conditions which could be wrongly perceived as Covid-19 symptoms (eg: a long-standing cough or hayfever) you may wish to take a Covid-19 test (if available) to offer your service users peace of mind.
- Call your service user in advance to schedule the job and if it is a domestic household, ensure that the occupants of the premises are free from the virus. No work should be carried out in a premises which is isolating because one or more occupant has symptoms or where an individual has been advised to shield, unless it is to remedy a direct risk to the safety of the premises, ie: an emergency or essential repair.
- When working in a domestic household where somebody is vulnerable (but has not been asked to shield e.g. where someone is over 70) prior arrangements should be made to avoid any close contact where possible.
- Inform the service user in advance of the safety measures you plan to take while completing the job.

or speak to your local branch <https://www.rexel.co.uk/uki/store-finder>

During – keeping COVID-secure

- Maintain appropriate social distancing, recommended 2 metres apart. If not possible for certain tasks, avoid close proximity between individuals for longer than 15 minutes at a time.
- Travel to the job separately from colleagues. If this isn't possible, stay with the same individuals throughout the journey and the job.
- Regularly clean vehicles and equipment and ensure adequate ventilation in the vehicle.
- Allocate the same worker to the same premises each time there is a visit.
- Wash hands and use hand sanitizer on arrival at the premises and throughout the day.
- Clean internal surfaces with disinfectant before and after the job.
- Clean and disinfect frequently touched external surfaces including external door handles. Ask property owners to open all internal doors before you arrive to minimise touching of door handles if practical and safe to do so.
- Avoid using service users' toilet or kitchen facilities wherever possible.
- At domestic premises do not engage with service users' children or pets.

If working in a domestic household and the service user is shielding because they've been told to self-isolate, only emergency work and essential maintenance should take place. If the service user is 'shielding' by their own initiative because they are in an at-risk group, work can take place but take additional precautions such as:

- For internal work, arrange for the service user to be in a different location in the property.
- If possible, avoid face to face contact with the vulnerable members of the household.
- Be extra vigilant with the use of disinfectant in all of the areas that you work in.
